BARBARA'S OWN STORY

40,000 At Big Downs Race

By JACK CONWAY

SUFFOLK DOWNS, June 29—Seabiscuit was still a doubtful starter in the $50,000 added Massachusetts Handicap as 40,000 persons gathered this afternoon to see if the great War Admiral can defeat the classiest field of thoroughbreds to clash this year.

C. S. Howard, owner of Seabiscuit, refused to make a positive statement at first-race time as to whether he would start his famous thoroughbred. Howard took occasional glances at a drying out track, which was exceptionally heavy. Howard has repeatedly stated he would prefer a sloppy to a drying out track.

Seabiscuit has very bad legs and does not like to run in sticky going.

Denies New Reports—At her home today, Barbara Carroll, 17, denied she sat in an auto outside the home of her former boy friend, Paul Dwyer, while Dr. James G. Littlefield was slain, allegedly by her father, ex-Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll. She said her testimony cannot hurt either her father or Paul insofar as the murder charges are concerned, but will hurt them otherwise.

SOUTH PARIS, Me., June 29—

Barbara Carroll told her own story to the Boston Evening American today.

She vigorously and vehemently denied published reports, attributed to county authorities, that she was outside the home of her former sweetheart, Paul Dwyer, when Dr. James G. Littlefield was slain, allegedly by her father, ex-Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll.

As a subpoenaed witness she will testify for the state against her father, she revealed, and she will say things that will hurt both her father and Dwyer—but not in connection with the murder charge.

In the presence of her mother, she talked at length regarding her romance with Dwyer and about her father, to whom she is still loyal.

This is her story. The questions are the reporters. The answers are hers:

Q—Are you Paul Dwyer's sweetheart? A—I am not.

Q—Were you ever? A—I was.

Q—For how long? A—For one whole school year.

Leaders Here Push Recovery Drive

Stocks In New Spurt

(AP)—The stock market resumed last week's record-breaking advance with one of the swiftest upswings of the year today.

Many leading issues shot up $1 to $5 or more, registering new high prices for the June recovery.

Brokers said that while there were few developments in the underlying business situation to affect the market, traders were encouraged by the lack of any important setback during the past two days, when prices wavered after the sweeping upswing of last week.

U. S. Gypsum was a high-flier, shooting up $10.25 to $96, but it then fell back a little.

In the early afternoon, duPont touched $118.50, up $5; U. S. Steel, $56, up $2.87; Bethlehem $58.50, up $3.50; Chrysler, $58.75, up $3.12; Johns Manville, $92, up $4.87; Owens Illinois Glass, $70, up $3; Santa Fe, $32.50, up $2.50; Union Pacific, $80.75, up $2.75; Westinghouse Electric, $96.75, up $4.75; Montgomery Ward, $42.62, up $3.12; American Telephone, $131, up $1.37.

Definite upturns in public confidence, increased buying and indications of early widespread re-employment continued to be evidenced today in the drive to hasten the end of the business recession and bring about recovery.

Business leaders continued to express optimism and to urge cooperation on the part of the public.

"Business itself has new reassurance," Frederick W. Bliss, New England district manager for the Westinghouse Manufacturing and Electric Company, declared.

"The present situation should encourage businessmen everywhere to go ahead with their plans. The thing is to act now, rather than to delay.

"With increasing confidence, conditions show definite indications of becoming better. Businessmen everywhere are encouraged."

Plan "Sell Now" Campaigns

One large Boston store—Kane's—announces it has cut prices 30 to 60 per cent in a big "sell now" campaign.

"We are following the advice of U. S. Senator H. Styles Bridges," Harry Kane, president of the store, said. "Senator Bridges in a recent letter to me said:

"It is my thought that it is to a large extent the huge surplus of manufactured goods that is hindering the return to normal business activity. It seems to me one of the best ways to cure this condition is to move these stocks in the shortest possible time, even at a sacrifice.

"I believe that right now, if manufacturers and retailers would cooperate in staging a gigantic 'sell now' campaign offering the public worthwhile reductions in prices, it would be possible to start a wave of buying that would move these goods, cause new goods to be ordered, factories to reopen and men to return to work."

Hopeful Signs Increase

Continued activity in commodity and raw materials markets yesterday was a most hopeful indication, economic experts said. The new impetus given to buying in these markets is evidence, it was pointed out, of expectation of early increases in demands for manufactured goods.

The stock market, while its meteoric rise of last week has slowed down, shows no indication of any slump, but, rather, seems to reflect the generally wide opinion that a "boom" is not far away, financial reports indicated.

Hurley Again Asks Jobs Cash

Governor Hurley, in two special messages to the Legislature today, requested legislation appropriating $17,500,000 for work that, he said, would relieve unemployment.

This was a reduction of $6,125,000 from the $23,625,000 figure turned down by the Legislature last week.

In his present recommendations, the governor asks for a bond issue of $9,000,000. Of this, $2,200,000 would be for construction of mental disease hospitals, and $1,800,000 specifically for a new building to house the state's criminally insane.

Another $4,000,000 would be for distribution to cities and towns "for no other purpose" than highway maintenance and construction.

The remaining $1,000,000 would be placed in an "emergency fund" for public health and safety, to be administered by a board composed of the Adjutant-General, the chairman of the State commission of administration and finance, the chairman of the Senate and House ways and means committees, and one other person to be named by the Governor.

On top of this $9,000,000 bond issues, the Governor recommends appropriations totaling $8,500,000 from State highway (gas tax) funds.

He urged the transfer of $4,000,000 of gas tax monies to the general fund, the object being, he states, to reduce the tax rate.

Another $500,000 would be given to the Metropolitan District Commission for repair and maintenance of roads.

The remaining $4,000,000 would be for highway work under the direction of the State Department of Public Works.

The proposals were referred to the House ways and means committee. Republican Legislators then went into caucus.

G. O. P. opposition to the new measure is certain, thereby dashing all hope of propogation of the Legislature this week.

WASHINGTON, June 29

As its contribution toward cooperation of government with business and labor to promote recovery, the Federal Housing Administration started out today to further the construction industries through home, farm and business property building and improvement.

The day marked the beginning of the fifth year of existence of the agency, created by Congress in 1934 to revive activity in the stagnated and virtually bankrupt construction field and thereby put hundreds of thousands of idle building trades mechanics and workers in industries producing building materials back to work.

Reviewing past accomplishments by the House administration and the immediate outlook for expanded activities, Stewart McDonald, administrator, said the agency rounded out its first four years with more than two and a half billions of dollars of business already on its books and predicted that the fifth year will surpass the best one up to this time.

In support of the optimistic outlook for the year now beginning, McDonald pointed out that a half billion dollars or one-fifth of the total volume of business thus far handled has been done in the less than five months since the recent session of Congress amended the National Housing Act on February 3.

Sees 'Era Of Good Feeling'

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 29—An "era of good feeling" between government and business that will restore America to a permanent prosperity was envisioned today by Richard C. Patterson, Jr., assistant secretary of Commerce.

"If we can get to trust each other—business and government—half our battle will be won, and we are definitely on our way," Patterson declared in his first interview since he took office some five weeks ago.

Patterson, urban and soft spoken, along with SEC Commissioner John Hanes, is the White House designate to inspire a sympathetic, co-operative attitude between government and business.

His spacious home in Washington was the scene of the unprecedented "co-operation" conference between top-ranking industrialists and White House advisers when President Roosevelt made his fireside address Friday night.

ATMOSPHERE CLEARING

Patterson told International News Service:

"There was a time—and it was not so long ago—when business and government viewed each other with misgivings.

"The atmosphere now is clearing perceptibly. Last Friday night we sat around the dinner table and discussed our problems informally. These business leaders met these who formulate the administration's policies. They exchanged views and they found they had much in common—that they wanted this democracy to survive and progress to the best interests of all concerned.

"The business leaders pledged whole-hearted co-operation. There still remains much to be done, we still are not in complete accord, but the progress we are making manifestly indicates we soon will be."

BIG MEN ATTEND

Present at the meeting Friday night were many of the "big names" in the industrial world. They included E. R. Stettinius, Jr., chairman of the board, United States Steel Corporation; John D. Biggers, president, Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co.; M. E. Folsom, treasurer, Eastman Kodak Co.; Clarence Francis, president, General Foods Corporation; W. A. Harriman, chairman of the board, Union Pacific Railroad Co., and Robert E. Wood, president, Sears Roebuck and Co.

Tucky's Pa Waits Pick

NEWPORT, R. I., June 29—WPA wheels already are turning, it was learned today, to give "Tucky's Pa" a raise to $55 a month.

Not that "Pa"—who is Francis Ormond French, ex-socialite, father of Mrs. John Jacob Astor 3rd—has anything yet. He's still waiting for the postman to bring him official notification that he's got even a $9-a-week pick-and-shovel relief job.

However, his application for relief has been approved. This is an application for state unemployment relief. He'll get only $9 a week there, but transfer to the WPA, now predicted, will mean a "raise" to $55 a month.

"I am desperate and never was more serious in my life," French declared today. "I am ready to swing a pick and shovel to get enough for myself and my wife to eat."

Long a thorn in the side of swanky Newport, the ex-banker, author, ex-cabdriver and former insurance salesman stated he ex-

Debs' Party Has Sad Ending for Topsy Guest

A ray coming-out party for two debutantes at the Brookline Country Club had a sad aftermath today for a guest, William Hall Browning II, of Marshfield Mills, when he was found guilty in Brookline court of drunken driving and fined $35. He paid.

Browning, son of wealthy William C. Browning of Ridgely, Ct., is a graduate of Middlesex School. He left Harvard three months ago to become producer-manager of a summer playhouse at Marshfield on the Cape.

AUTO ON THE LAWN

Brookline police said they found him seated in his car on a lawn in Warren street, near the Country Club exit, talking to himself loudly, using profanity and in a high voice lamenting his predicament.

"He was talking about idealism," testified Patrolman Edward Makarewicz, "and about idealists sitting in judgment upon him. He also said he wanted to kill himself as he had just had a row with a girl."

Browning testified he had a cocktail before dinner and three glasses of champagne after the coffee course.

A LOST GUEST

He said he was a guest at the coming-out party for the misses Joanne Leonard and Katherine McAusland.

He did not seriously dispute the testimony of the arresting officers but maintained before Judge Daniel A. Rollins that he did not believe he was drunk at the time they came upon him.

"I really lost my way," he maintained. "When I saw the officers I thought I was on the road and not on this lawn."

Tobin Retires 2 Police Captains

Retirement of the veteran police captains Matthew Killian, now of the Jamaica Plain station, and Archibald Campbell, now of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, was approved today by Mayor Tobin.

The mayor withheld approval of retirement of Captain John J. Fitzpatrick, now attached to police headquarters.

Captain Killian was 65 years old last October 15. He became a member of the Boston police department in 1898. Captain Campbell was 65 on May 17. He joined the department in 1900. He was a sergeant in the rough and tumble days when the then turbulent South End was ruled by Captain John Driscoll of old Station 5, in East Dedham street.

Love's Strike Ends

IRVINGTON, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—Mrs. Hedi Heusser, red-haired Hungarian love striker, broke her nine-day self-imprisonment in the Rollo K. Blanchard mansion today.

Making her way first to a nearby roadstand she ordered a hot-dog, wolfed it with evident relish, and immediately looked brighter and gayer.

From the roadstand she went to the White Plains office of her attorney, Mortimer O'Brien.

It was an unexpected break in the routine she has followed since she took up residence in Blanchard's home with the avowed intention of not leaving until he married her.

Blanchard, 48-year-old chubby and bald manufacturer, was not in sight when Mrs. Heusser, his junior by 20 years, emerged.

She tried on four or five different hats to get the best pictorial effect for the photographers, and donned lounging pajamas over her dress to give other photographers one more chance to photograph her at her second-story window. Then she emerged, her pretty face all smiles.

Mrs. Heusser had entertained last night in the grand manner for the two male detectives and three women guards, assigned to the house by Blanchard.

Plans to Continue Circus Abandoned

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—George Smith, general manager, said today all plans for resuming the tour of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus had been definitely abandoned.

The show is headed for storage at Sarasota, Fla. Its horses were shipped to the circus farms at Peru, Ind., today and the remainder of the show was scheduled to leave here during the afternoon for Florida.

Briton Babs' Third?

NEW YORK, June 29 (INS)—Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow has no interest whatsoever in regaining her United States citizenship, Cholly Knickerbocker writes today in a copyrighted article in the Journal-American, of which he is society editor. He adds:

"Barbara's future plans call for her becoming a British subject—via the matrimonial route."

The writer characterizes as "just so much 'hokey,'" the report that the former Barbara Hutton is infatuated with Prince Frederick of Prussia.

"Barbara," the article continues, "has been interested, romantically, for months and months past, in the thirty-year-old second son of an English Earl."

"The young man, whose mother was an American, is reportedly having marital difficulties with his second wife, his first spouse having become the wife of an American . . ."

IT'S NO SECRET

The story adds:

"Barbara's family, and her close friends in London, have long known of her desire to 'shelve' her Danish hubby and thus clear the way for her third marriage. And she has declined to heed the advice of those who have counseled her against the move."

"For the father of the young Briton's present wife is one of England's powerful figures and he could—if he wanted to—make life difficult in London for the American-Danish heiress who is supposedly bent on marrying his son-in-law—if and when, his daughter relinquishes her marital right to him."

"One wonders just how much the Milbankes—Sir John and Sheila—know of Barbara's 'inside plans.'"

INVESTMENT ADVISER

"The Milbankes have become her most intimate friends in London and captured the commission for decorating 'Winfield House,' Barbara's palatial London home. In addition, Sir John is reported to have been advising Barbara as to her investments."

"From the beginning, Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow resented the Milbankes and frowned on their attempts to pilot Barbara, socially, in the British metropolis. When Sir John entered the financial picture Kurt felt his own particular domain had been invaded."

"For, from the day he became Barbara's husband Kurt evinced a deep concern about her investments and was responsible for his wife's selling American securities and investing her Woolworth millions abroad."

"Gossip has it Sir John Milbanke and Count Haugwitz-Reventlow could not see eye-to-eye as to the placing of Barbara's American dollars and when Barbara took Sir John's advice in preference to that offered by her very egotistical husband, the row that had been smoldering for months came to a head—and offered Barbara, at long last, an opportunity to 'tell off Haugwitz-Reventlow and set in motion the machinery that will eventually—she hopes—clear the way for her to become a subject of King George VI—via the matrimonial route.'"

Jews Protest Execution

JERUSALEM, June 29 (INS)

Under the ready guns of hastily-marshalled troop and police reserves, thousands of angry Jews streamed through Jerusalem today in violent protest against the execution of a young Jew.

Martial law, which has been periodically in effect for many troubled months, was tightened throughout the tense Arab-Jewish areas.

With defiance on his lips, 15-year-old Solomon Ben Yosef was hanged for firing on a Arab-owned bus.

Abandon Search of Cliffs For Young McCormick Heir

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 29 (AP)—Search for young Medill McCormick was abandoned today on the cliff face of mile-high Sandia Peak, where he disappeared a week ago while on a climbing expedition with Richard Whitmer, 20-year-old Princeton student.

A family spokesman said they were convinced the 21-year-old publishing heir was not on the peak. Search was continued, however, in the rocky wooded canyon country at the foot of the mountain.

"There isn't a living human being who has any idea what happened to Johnny," said Mrs. Cortland Barnes, Jr., Medill's sister. "Johnny" is the family nickname for the missing boy.

"There is no one on that cliff. We very definitely feel his body is not there," she said wearily.

"Mountain climbers who have gone over the precipice with a fine-tooth comb feel Johnny must have gotten down somehow."

For the first day since McCormick and Whitmer were reported lost last Thursday, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, Medill's mother, remained in seclusion at the Simms ranch house.

Some mystery surrounded two late developments—a single, unexplained gunshot, and an unidentified object on a remote canyon wall. They intensified the quizzical surrounding McCormick's fate, unexplained since the body of Whitmer was found last Thursday at the foot of the peak.

Patrolman William Murphy of the Albuquerque City police reported a mysterious man fired a shot at him and Dick Montana of nearby Bernalillo as they trudged through the mountains.

Holyoke Mayor Seeks Place on G. O. P. Ticket

Simultaneously with John W. Laigis' withdrawal as a Republican candidate for the nomination for Governor, Mayor William P. Yoerg of Holyoke today announced his own candidacy for the nomination as lieutenant-governor on the Democratic ticket.

Haigis' home town is Greenfield.

The western part of the state, political observers remarked, seems destined to be an important battleground of the forthcoming primaries. Both Richard Whitcomb and Leverett Saltonstall, rival Republican candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, already are skirmishing for the support of Haigis' now-released adherents.

Mayor Yoerg is serving his third term as mayor of Holyoke. He believes "the problems of municipal government need a wider representation in the councils of state government," he says.

Haigis' explanation of his retirement was that "the demands of our modern political system in connection with a campaign for the Governorship are greater than I can meet."

New Orleans Runs CIO Out

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 29 (INS)—A CIO badge meant serious trouble for its wearer in New Orleans today.

Organizers and even mere members of Committee for Industrial Organization unions felt the weight of a citywide drive instigated by Acting Superintendent of Police John Grosch, who declared:

"I'm going to run all these CIO Communists out of town—all of them."

CIO officials estimated today that more than 150 persons had been arrested in the past few days. While 100 were released, the remainder, it was said, were being secretly held and spirited from one stationhouse to another to evade attempts to set them free.

Two organizers, it was alleged, had been brutally beaten and run out of town. A third fled in fear of injury. It was claimed, and those remaining in the city were cautioned to stay in hiding.

Says Mother Barred Turner Girl Friend

SALEM, June 29—Herbert B. Turner, distinguished Gloucester artist, told his mother he was paying Miss Mildred Copperman to take care of him and his cottage, Mrs. Jane Reddan of Arlington testified in probate court today.

Miss Copperman, herself an artist in Gloucester, is defending an action brought to bar her from receiving a $25,000 bequest from Turner. Turner died in Genoa, Italy. At the time, it has been brought out in court, Miss Copperman was his traveling companion.

Mrs. Reddan testified she worked for Turner's mother, the late Mrs. Adelaide Turner, for 20 years.

MOTHER BARRED HER

In July, 1929, she testified, she overheard a conversation between Mrs. Turner, and her son, in which Mrs. Turner told her son she didn't want Miss Copperman coming to the house any more.

Turner, Mrs. Reddan said, told his mother that unless Miss Copperman was welcome he would not come to her home himself but would sever all connections with her.

Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Reddan testified, broke down and cried. It was a week or so later that Turner told his mother he was paying Miss Copperman to take care of him and his studio-cottage.

Mrs. Reddan stated Turner's mother, the witness declared, said she didn't think it was

Nye Boosts His Lead in Senate Race

FARGO, N. D., June 29 (AP)—U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye increased his lead over Governor William Langer for the Republican senatorial nomination to approximately 15,000 when votes from a third of North Dakota's precincts in yesterday's primary election were tabulated today.

Usher L. Burdick and William Lenke, North Dakota's representatives in Congress, also seemed assured of renomination in the Republican column.

Burdick, endorsed by the Non-Partisan League, of which Langer is titular head, and Lenke were maintaining favorable leads for congressional posts in a six-cornered contest.

Returns from 775 of 2266 precincts gave Langer 32,410; Nye 47,742.

For Congress, Burdick had 23,182 and Lenke 22,656 to lead their closest opposition by almost two to one on returns from 446 precincts.

In the Republican governorship race, Nye's teammate, Lieutenant-Governor T. H. H. Thoresen, held approximately 9000 votes lead on returns from 759 precincts which gave him 39,185 votes to 36,548 for Commissioner of Agriculture and Labor John N. Hagan, Langer-League candidate.

In the Democratic races regular organization candidates were holding a lead over a partial slate of "Progressives."

Ruling May Cost Lynn Convention

From indications today, the city of Lynn will be unable to play host to the 1939 state convention of the American Legion, because of a technical ruling on entertainment funds.

Local Legion officials conferred with City Solicitor Patrick F. Shanahan to ask that $2500 be posted by the city for the proposed convention. Shanahan pointed out that the city cannot appropriate entertainment funds subsequent to the fixing of the tax rate, which has already been announced.

right; that she "didn't want people to think something was wrong." Turner, Mrs. Reddan testified, replied that he'd "fixed" that by "giving" Miss Copperman the name of Turner.

OFFERS FRIENDLY LETTERS

"They'll get on to it in time," Mrs. Turner said, according to Mrs. Reddan's testimony, but Turner, she related, retorted he had "no fear of that."

Miss Copperman, Mrs. Reddan said, called at Turner's mother's home, from 1929 to 1931, perhaps a half dozen times. They were "5-minute calls," Mrs. Reddan said, and Miss Copperman was never asked to stay to lunch or supper, and only once was she served sandwiches and tea.

Attorney Harry Dolan, for Miss Copperman, offered to submit in evidence letters that, he said, were from Mrs. Turner to Miss Copperman, which would rebut Mrs. Reddan's testimony and show that Mrs. Turner and Miss Copperman were "on the best of terms." The letters were not admitted, however.

Lee Disowns Reds' Hate Of Religion

Boston School Committeeman Joseph Lee of Beacon Hill today asserted that he upholds the central doctrine of Communism but stoutly denied that he advocates the anti-religious doctrines of that system.

The core of the Communist philosophy to which Lee said he subscribes is its demand for "a more equal distribution of wealth, for a more equal opportunity for all citizens to earn a decent living."

This statement was made by the wealthy member of the school committee to offset any "implications" left by his fellow-committee members in their "resolution" of him last night at the regular weekly meeting of the school board, he said.

"In supporting the proposition of equal opportunity for all," declared Lee, "I am but upholding the doctrine of Pope Pius XI and the Constitution of the United States."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lee both were disturbed by the Communist label which the school committee seemed to have left hanging to him after the stormy committee meeting.

"I don't see how they can impute anti-religion to my husband," said Mrs. Lee. "He is deeply religious and studies religion continually."

At this point Lee produced a manuscript on which he has been working 12 years and which, when published in book form, will take up cudgels in behalf of religion against what he called the "bunk" in science.

While admittedly professing to see value in the Communistic theories, Lee said he believes that the Soviet system of regimentation of work and workers would be unworkable here because he is a firm advocate of "competition" in trade and commerce.

Love in Tech Leads to Altar

A college romance which started in the classrooms at Massachusetts Institute of Technology between a member of the Russian aristocracy and a young engineer was revealed today.

The couple, Tatiana Ivanovna Zarodnaya, Harvard street, Cambridge, and Robert Elcheberger, Hull of Haver, Pa. Juniors, filed intentions at Cambridge City Hall.

The bride-to-be disclosed today that her early education was gained in China.

They plan to postpone their wedding careers after their wedding on July 20.

'Miss Hollywood' Drops Love Suit

HOLLYWOOD, June 29 (INS)—Gaye Melton, young actress who held the title of "Miss Hollywood of 1937," has dropped her $200,000 breach of promise suit against William Koenig, film executive, it was reported today.

Though no mention was made of a purported settlement, it was indicated one had been made.

Miss Melton alleged Koenig wooed her then betrayed her on his yacht in the romantic waters of Catalina Island, after proposing marriage.

'Jimmy' Ace Insurance Man

"Jimmy never has to go out for business. They sit on his steps and wait to give it to him."

Victor de Gerard said that today about James Roosevelt, son and aide of the President, and about "Jimmy's Got It," the controversial article in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post dealing with the fortune made by "Jimmy" in the insurance business.

De Gerard, Boston insurance broker who launched "Jimmy" in the business, was disturbed by intimations that "Jimmy's" success has been allied with the fact that his father is President of the United States. He said:

"This is really quite a serious thing and I will write a sequel to that article. I am for Jimmy first. A lot of this is buncombe."

"Jimmy's" income, the article states, is estimated at from $250,000 to $2,000,000 a year. A comparative newcomer in the insurance "game," he has been remarkably successful in taking huge contracts away from older, more experienced men, this article points out.

De Gerard, after having persuaded "Jimmy" to give up law for insurance, had "Jimmy" weaned away from him, says the article. "Jimmy's" father himself took a hand in the proceedings and told de Gerard that, in his opinion, "Jimmy" required more substantial backing, it is stated.

This, says the article, was at a conference in the Roosevelt home, from which de Gerard emerged minus "Jimmy" as a partner.

De Gerard has his insurance offices in Federal street. His home is in Chestnut street, Beacon Hill. He is a professor, also, at Harvard University.

"There's nothing new in the story I persuaded Jimmy to go into the insurance business," he said. "It has been previously related, somewhat exaggeratedly. They're rehabilitating something as old as Methuselah. There's no spark in it."

The title of the Saturday Evening Post article, by Alva Johnston, refers not as at first glance might appear to Jimmy's having "It," but to what Mr. Johnston says has become a common phrase among insurance men, meaning that "Jimmy's" got another contract away from someone who thought he had it "sewed up."

"Jimmy has continued to leave the size of his income to guesses," Johnston writes in his magazine article. "His colleagues in the insurance business are good at figures and they have developed some estimates of his income based on insurance that he is known to have written."

"These estimates vary too widely to be satisfactory. New York insurance men usually figure his income at about $250,000 a year, while up in Boston they give him as much as $2,000,000 a year."

WILL BE BIG RICH

"At any rate, if he keeps on forging ahead at his present rate for the next six years he will be one of the rich men of America and free to devote himself to the service of the people."

Johnston recounts the time Theodore M. Richie, a New York agent, thought he had a large policy on the life of George Washington Hill, in favor of the American Tobacco Company, "all set." After the nomination of President Roosevelt a friend called Richie and said:

"I understand you have George Washington Hill sewed up."

"I think I have," said Richie.

"Well, think again," the friend said. "Jimmy's got it."

According to Johnston, while Mr. Hill was visiting Warm Springs he was the nominating convention James called Warm Springs and said to a member of the Roosevelt entourage:

"Tell father to be nice to Mr. Hill. I want to get his insurance."

The writer also relates that a specialist in whiskey insurance wrote the $70,000,000 business of the National Distillers until the President entered the White House, when the business was shifted to James, giving him an annual income from the one source of about $50,000.

Among the corporations subject to government regulations for which James writes the insurance, he says, are the Columbia Broad-

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Be. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Green in Threat To Walk Out in Gift Job Clash hearing on the grounds he was being humiliated.

Commissioner Green was under questioning of Attorney Warren Patten, counsel for the investigating committee, and objected to the manner of questioning.

He rose from the witness chair to object and Chairman Goodwin immediately ordered him to sit down.

"I'm going to stand up," retorted Green. "I know my rights. If I'm going to be humiliated for whom and what I represent, I'll walk out of this hearing!" (The civil service head is a Democrat and friend of Governor Hurley, against whom the investigation is directed.)

In another outburst, Green addressed Patten:

"Mr. Patten, you've bluffed everybody who has come before you but you're not going to bluff me!"

He turned sharply then to Officer Estabrook and shouted:

"You take your hands off me!" Officer Estabrook then warned the commissioner:

"You respect the chairman and this committee or it will be my duty to take you out of here."

OBJECTS TO "CUSTODY"

Chairman Goodwin obtained order again and Patten continued his questions.

During the various flares, Representative John F. Aspell of Roxbury, Democratic floor leader, defended Green several times and objected to him being placed "in custody" of the court officer.

Questioning of Green concerned his knowledge of the department heads, particularly as to efforts to appoint commission employees from regular civil service lists rather than by provisional appointment lists that backers of the probe claim were given in return for Hurley campaign work in 1936.

Many of the questions he referred to as a function of James E. O'Neill, chief civil service examiner, who sat at Green's elbow during the questioning.

Patten insisted upon replies from Green and not O'Neill and invariably received replies of:

"I left that to Mr. O'Neill."

In the midst of the questioning, some one behind the commissioner whispered to him:

"We don't want any 'Charlie McCarthy's' here," said Patten. "I believe that the witness should not be prompted in his answers."

After Green left the witness chair, he stood before the table, and said in a loud voice:

"At no time have I ducked a subpoena and I am not being prompted in my answers. I think I have the right to consult associates in my office for information."

DENIES HURLEY BOSS

"I have not come here previously because of advice of my physician. He told me to do to the beaches and ball parks for relaxation and I did so."

"I resent the inferences of Attorney Patten. I don't allow my self or my department to be made political footballs of. At no time did the governor interfere with me or my department. I wouldn't allow him to. I'd rather resign than permit him to interfere."

"Every act of mine since I became commissioner has been strictly in accordance with law. There is nothing in my private or public life that I am ashamed of."

Princess Sues Count for Love

PARIS, June 29 (AP)—The Russian Princess Nadia Cherbatoff today filed suit in a Paris civil court demanding 1,000,000 francs ($27,000) damages and an allowance of 10,000 francs a month from Count Louise de Brantes, accusing him of breaking off a three-year love affair.

The blonde princess, now a dress model, listened gravely while attorneys gave their version of the affair they said ended shortly after the princess bore a daughter, Nadedja. They told how the princess left her husband, Count Stenbock-Fermor, and their two children to follow de Brantes to French Indochina.

MARGARET SULLIVAN JAMES STEWART
Stars in 'Shopworn Angel'

Wanted: modern maxims for the lovelorn! What is your definition of Love?

Cement Death Feud

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

SOUTH HADLEY, June 29—Details of an alleged bitter race-track feud between Charles Morris, 43, believed victim of the Connecticut river murder here, and J. Paul Bathelt, charged with his slaying, were revealed by State police today.

The revelations came as Morris' car, sought ever since Morris dropped from sight a year ago, was being returned here after being located in Newark, N. J., and Bathelt's wife was being brought to her husband's side from New York, despite a broken leg.

Bathelt, 26-year-old son of a wealthy Holyoke contractor, is held in Northampton jail on a first degree murder charge, as the alleged slayer of Morris, his former pal.

"FEUD" OVER HORSE

Piece by piece police reconstructed the feud which grew between Morris and Bathelt during their partnership in the Agawam racetrack in the early spring of last year.

Central figure of the alleged enmity was a race horse named "Legionnaire," which had made a fair record at Rockingham and Suffolk Downs tracks and was entered in a claiming race at Agawam.

Morris had been barred by the Massachusetts racing commission, police said, from participating in horse deals. He and Bathelt, they declared, secured a "front man" and posted $1700 a claim "Legionnaire" should the horse win the race.

STORY OF RACE

"Legionnaire" won and was claimed by this representative for Morris and Bathelt, according to police. This deal, they said, started the feud between the two men.

Subsequent Bathelt was barred by the racing commission from dealing at tracks in this state, charged with violation of the claiming rules as a result of the "Legionnaire" transaction.

He appealed to the commission and last July a hearing was held. Morris, scheduled as a witness for the commission, failed to appear, and Bathelt's suspension was lifted. According to police, Morris had been murdered at this time.

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP)—Mrs. Margo L. Bathelt, whose husband, John, is being held on a murder charge in Northampton, Mass., in connection with the finding of a cement-encased body in the Connecticut river, today secluded herself in a midtown hotel.

Her lawyer, Eugene B. Winnet, said she left her Park avenue apartment last night because of annoyance created by the case. He said a fractured leg suffered by was our sophomore year. He was in my class at South Paris High School. Our romance started at the beginning of the school year. I broke with him the following summer. He walked back and forth to school with me. We kept dates and went to parties and dances.

Q—Did you ever hear during that time that Paul had any connection with a dope ring from which he feared "fiendish reprisals"? A—I never heard or never knew of any such connection he had with any dope ring while I knew him. I do not know of anything that would connect him with a dope ring.

Q—You are believed by many to be still his sweetheart. A—I have not gone with him since that time three years ago. I have been going with somebody else for two years.

Q—How did you happen to break up? A—My mother had something to do with that—Barbara's mother, Mrs. Ruby Carroll, 35, broke in here, saying:

"I thought Barbara was altogether too young to settle down to one boy friend. She was only 14 then, so I told her to stop going steady."

Q—After you broke off with Paul at your mother's request did you ever see him again? A—He walked home from school with me a few times, but there were never any more dates.

Never Heard of Father's Threats

Q—Is there anything to the story Paul is purported to have told, that your father forbade his going with you because your father was jealous of him? A—I never knew of any threat by my father to him, or any jealousy. My father did not know him until I started to go out with him. He never said anything to me about it and as far as I know never said anything to Paul. It was my mother.

Q—Did you love Paul? A—Mmm-hmm, I did then. I don't now.

Q—What did you have in common? A—We were in school dramas together and always danced together. He was a very good dancer, but I loved sports. His major fault was that he did not like to go to school sports. I

Who Shut That Door? Vital in Carroll Case

SOUTH PARIS, Me., June 29—Letters mysteriously taken from the Dwyer home where Dr. James G. Littlefield was allegedly slain and the door key which turned the lock on the death scene were being sought by authorities here today.

Investigators said key and letters might provide new and valuable clues in the "stranger-than-fiction" slayings which have supplied the most bizarre chapter of Maine's crime history.

The government wants to be able to prove who locked the door of Paul Dwyer's house on the night of Oct. 13, 1937, after Dr. Littlefield, kindly old town physician, had been fatally beaten and choked in a bathroom there.

First, Paul Dwyer said he killed the doctor, carried his body out of the house and turned the key in the lock.

Now 18-year-old Dwyer says the slaying was committed not by him but by deposed Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll, at present indicted and waiting trial for the murder.

According to Dwyer's new story, Carroll helped him carry out the doctor's body and Carroll closed the house door.

But the key with which that door was locked cannot be found.

Also the object of intensive search was at least two and perhaps more letters, allegedly written by Barbara Carroll, daughter of the accused ex-deputy sheriff, to her one-time sweetheart, Dwyer.

According to Dwyer, he hid the letters in his home. They were never found by authorities after Dwyer's arrest.

Official claim.

had any of them in their possession.

Q—Were you at Dwyer's home or anywhere near the scene of the murder the night Dr. Littlefield was killed? A—I was not outside the Dwyer house or inside it either, the night of the murder or any other time.

Q—Could the footprints supposedly found there have been yours? A—They couldn't have been mine. I was never there.

Tells of Actions

On "Murder Night"

Q—Where were you the night of October 13th, of last year? A—Tuesday night, Oct. 12, I went to the movies at Lewiston with a family from Norway. Wednesday night, Oct. 13, when they say Dr. Littlefield was killed, I was out all evening with a boy friend who lives in Lovell. I told the played on the high school basketball team for four years and I was captain. I played in the high school and junior high school championships and I was engaged in many other school activities.

Q—Then the things you and Paul had in common were school dramas and dancing? A—He was a good dancer, very good.

Q—Then how you account for the fact that it was believed you were his sweetheart up until recently? A—Well, all the letters I wrote him were found in his pocket, so that everybody just assumed that.

Tells of Visiting Him in Prison

Q—Do you feel bitter about him bringing this trouble on your head? A—I feel bitter about anything he told which was a lie. I don't feel bad about it if it was the truth. I'll admit it, if it is the truth.

Q—Have you seen him since his arrest? A—Yes, I visited him at the prison in Thomaston with my mother. We were brought there by officials. Paul swore to me then he had never mentioned my name in a bad connection. Paul has never said that I was his sweetheart in any of his confessions.

Q—You are under subpoena by the state to appear as a witness, are you not? A—I will.

Q—Will you testify for the state? A—I will.

Q—What will you testify? A—I cannot tell you that, but I will say when I take the witness stand I will tell the whole truth. I have done so, so far, and I will not tell anything different now. Some of the things I say will hurt dad, some will hurt Paul, but I will have to tell all the same.

"Nothing I'll Say Will Hurt Dad"

Q—Whether it hurts your dad or not? A—Nothing that I will have to say will hurt dad so far as this last case and the murder charge is concerned. Nothing that I will say will hurt either Paul or my father on the murder charge.

Q—Are your relations with your father pleasant now? A—Very pleasant. I have been down to see him once. I would have gone more often, except for the fact that I was bothered on that visit.

Q—How were your relations with Paul when you visited him at Thomaston state prison? A—When my mother and I first came in, Paul thought it was some trick being played on him to make him talk. He was upset, I guess, by that idea. Afterwards, though, the visit was very pleasant.

Q—Did Paul try to make dates with you after you broke with him? A—Yes, he did, but I obeyed mother.

Q—Was Paul jealous of you? Was he angry if you went out with somebody else? A—We felt that we were going steady. I never had much desire to go out with anybody else. If he had thought I did go out with anybody else, he would have put up a bother.

Q—Was he jealous of your present boy friend? A—They knew each other, but Paul never expressed any particular jealousy.

Q—Have you been bothered by gossip? A—No, because I do not go out to hear or to become disturbed. I went out a few times before the murder charge. Since that time, I have stayed right in the house.

Q—That's been voluntary hasn't it? You don't have to stay in the house? A—It's pure, voluntary. I prefer to stay in the house. Every one of my friends, I have seen, however, has been very kind to me. I do not believe I have lost any friends. The officials at the high school were very, very nice to me. After the first case, I didn't return to school. I did not have to pass final tests. Superintendent William O. Bailey came to my house and presented me with my full diploma.

Q—What is the thing that has hurt you the most since this case started? A—The fact that I could not attend my graduation exercises, go to all the house parties and other events. It nearly broke my heart. I was concerned, too, by the fact that it was reported that I was seen in a car with dad near the scene of the Dr. Littlefield murder and the fact that footprints of mine were supposed to have been found in the house and on the ground outside. The stories have said that officials have compared the footprints with shoes of mine and of my mother. They are not so. All my shoes are right here and so are all of mother's. The authorities have never grand jury where I was both nights. Other witnesses proved what I said was true. The grand jury was satisfied. I can't imagine what could have made them change their minds all of a sudden.

Q—How about the two girls who are supposed to have said they saw you sitting in an auto outside Dwyer's house that night Dr. Littlefield was killed? A—If Priscilla and Virginia Moore said they saw me in an auto outside Paul Dwyer's house, they were mistaken. I can't believe they'd say such a thing. I know them both very well. They were in my class at school. Maybe they saw somebody at the Dwyer house, but they didn't see me. They couldn't have. I was never there.

Q—Have you been told not to talk to anyone about the Littlefield slayings and your father's trouble? A—I'm not supposed to talk at all about the Littlefield case or about my father, but I don't think my lips ought to be sealed while my character is being attacked and my truthfulness questioned.

Q—What do you plan for the future? A—Right now, I just plan to wait and see what happens in connection with this case. I do wish it was over! It came on suddenly for me to make any definite plans after graduation. My plans before this arose were to go to a physical education college to train for athletic teaching or to be an athletic coach.

Q—Will you follow out those plans? A—I hope so.

Q—Is there anything you can think of that you want cleared up in the public mind in connection with this case, insofar as you are involved? A—Nothing definite now.

Leak Probers Call Sandys

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—Britain's political storm over the official secrets act was intensified today when Duncan Sandys, central figure in the turmoil, told a turbulent House of Commons he had been ordered to appear before a military court.

Sandys, conservative member of the House and son-in-law of Winston Churchill, declared that was "a gross breach of the privileges of this House."

It was Sandys' charge in the House Monday that the attorney-general had threatened him with removal of the secrets act, usually used against spies, unless he divulged the source of certain information, thus bringing the entire system into the open and arousing criticism weakening the position of the government.

On the basis of this information Sandys had framed a question to be asked in Commons concerning alleged deficiency in British defenses against aircraft. The military court was instituted yesterday to inquire into the leakage of information considered secret.

Sandys told the House today he was ordered to appear before the court to inform in his capacity as an officer in the territorial army tomorrow morning "for the purpose of giving evidence."

Prime Minister Chamberlain then announced that Leslie Hore-Blith, secretary of war, would ask the army council to suspend the court proceedings until the House committee on privileges had reached a decision on the affair.

British Warships Rush to Mallorca

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—Two British destroyers, the Imogen and the Isis, were ordered suddenly to Mallorca today from Gibraltar.

The admiralty described the movement as "routine" in connection with the Nyon anti-piracy patrol.

The Italian-operated airplane base at Palma, Mallorca, is the source of many of the insurgent air raids on the coast of government Spain and British shipping in Spanish waters.

Japs in Drive Upon Capital

SHANGHAI, June 29 (INS)—Japan today was hurling the full force of her Yangtze river naval, land and air units into a violent effort to demolish China's powerful forts and boom blocking the path to Hankow, the capital.

One of the biggest engagements yet waged in the Chinese-Japanese war was developing in the vicinity of Mingang 145 miles east of Hankow.

Duce Asks Franco 'Ease Bombings'

ROME, June 29 (AP)—A spokesman for the Fascist regime declared today Italy had advised General Francisco Franco, Spanish insurgent leader, to ease "intensity" in his efforts to prevent British and other foreign ships from bringing supplies to government Spain.

The spokesman, the noted editor Virginio Gayda, said, however, that Italy approved of the bombing of vessels carrying contraband but disclaimed any Italian responsibility therefor.

German Youth Is Killed in Memel Riot

MEMEL, Lithuania, June 29 (INS)—A German youth was killed and 50 persons injured in a rioting that broke out here during the night between Nazis and Lithuanians.

For two hours savage fighting raged up and down the streets of this Baltic seaport that was taken away from Germany and given to Lithuania after the World War.

Of those injured in the disturbance 12 were in serious condition in hospitals.

The youth killed was the 18-year-old son of a German policeman in this former German city that has been one of Europe's major tinder-box for years. It was feared the rioting and the casualties to Germans might result in a change of international developments involving Nazi Germany in a controversy with Lithuania. Nazis have always claimed Memel as a German city that must some day be returned to the Reich.

Valencia Drive On 50-Mile Front

HENDAYE, France, June 29 (AP)—The battle for Valencia swung on both flanks of a 50-mile front in Eastern Spain with neither the government nor the insurgents able to gain a decisive advantage.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces held the upper hand in the coastal sector where they attempted to break through strong government defenses guarding the important Mediterranean port.

Inland, where another insurgent column was pushing east, General Juan Mola's troops were holding their own.

Taxpayers Fight Road Fund Deal

Charging it would "provide political patronage and increase local tax rates," the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Associations today moved against a proposed $2,000,000 appropriation for highways by making circulars to voters through the state.

They asked that citizens protest against the proposal in communications to their representatives and senators. The circular said, in part:

"Well founded newspaper reports indicate a trade in the making by which, as a price of prerogative of the General Court this week, your representatives and senators will be asked to vote an additional $4,500,000 for state highways and $4,500,000 for local highways."

"This is to be spent at the direction of the State Department of Public Works, and is in lieu of the $25,000,000 bond issue asked by the governor."

"Passage of such legislation would increase all local tax rates by an average of well over $1 to pay for work unnecessary at this time, would provide political patronage at the height of an election campaign, and set up the Department of Public Works as an authority to decide how your money is going to be spent in your town."

Japs Riot For Banned Raw Cotton

TOKYO, June 29 (AP)—Wild excitement prevailed in textile markets today as manufacturers' agents fought frantically to buy the last shreds of raw cotton with the prohibition of a government decree ordering factories to quit producing a long list of cotton cloth and iron products for domestic use.

Giving Japan's economic thumb-screw another twist as a result of the Chinese war, the decree was designed in part to promote export trade, particularly of cotton textiles, without increasing raw cotton imports.

Pleading with the people to refrain from the present stocks of raw cotton would be sufficient to last this year. Thereafter staple fibre and synthetic products will be used instead.

Exporters were jubilant, since the order will provide their machines with more raw material, but retailers were thrown into a near panic.

Scenes resembling a frenzied bargain counter sale developed as retailers battled to acquire every available scrap of finished cloth.

Promulgated by Seihin Ikeda, the minister of commerce, with the slogan, "Toward victory with all resources and efforts," the decree listed 47 types of articles which will be banned from production after July 1.

The newspapers reported that Ikeda's hand trembled as he signed the decrees. They found some humor in the probable immediate shortage of such articles as razors, scissors, and gadgets used in feminine hairdressing.

For twenty-one years, she's been swinging a cold chisel down in her Endicott street shop, has been pulling pretzel-shaped wheels back into line and yet has sufficient pep and ingenuity left to patent two new bikes soon after the holiday she leaves for New York to sit in on a factory conference as a technical adviser.

Her unique career started with love. A score of years ago she married a bike-maker. Since his death a year and a half ago, she's been carrying on single-handed.

Biggest season is spring when the lure of the open bays everyone. During slack periods she derives income by re-lining stretchers and re-bushings on baby carriages. To date she's worked on about ten thousand bikes but has never polished a black horse!

The Brighter Side by Damon Runyon

A FELLOW with a sense of humor can get many a laugh just sitting around and observing the phlegms that befall our celebrated public faty, old honest John Citizen. Gee, he is funny!

One of the more ludicrous situations in which honest John often figures is produced when he accidentally observes a crime and is summoned into court as a witness. Sometimes this is at great inconvenience and perhaps expense to honest John, but unless he lives in New York City he never evades an appearance because he has a sense of public duty that makes him all the more laughable.

If he lives in New York City, old honest John Citizen is likely to be snarled up to what happens to witnesses in court, so no matter what he CHALLENGE—I, Elizabeth Wilkins, having had words with Hannah Byfield and require satisfaction, do invite her to meet me anywhere and box me for three guineas, each woman holding a half crown in each hand and the first woman that drops the money to lose the battle.

ANSWER—I, Hannah Byfield, hearing of the resolve of Elizabeth Wilkins, will not fail to give her blows than words, desiring home blows. She may expect a good thumping.

The half crown in the hand was an ingenious device to prevent scratches and although the battle may have lacked the Louis-Schmange ballroom, we wonder if Hannah's home blows included kidney punches.

IT WOULD require the pen of an Albert Payson Terhune to describe the fastidious of a Sailor, an eight-year-old German police dog in Gloucester.

He ships aboard one of the fishing schooners and just before sailing time, with instructions from no one, he makes a tour of all bars. With nudges, tugs and an occasional leg grip, he herds the crew together and tucks them down to the wharf. His owner, an old salt himself, claims he wouldn't swap his dog for a cordon of blue-clothed police.

pre-Roosevelt. Yet the Republicans haven't got a man in their menagerie that doesn't somehow suggest that.

THIRDS isn't a Republican who could do the trick. Mr. Roosevelt knows that. Mr. Hamilton will lead in vain for Democrats to become shadows in Republican elections. There is only one answer for Republicans to support middle-of-the-road Democrats in congressional districts, in the Senate and in the presidency.

If they had the sense that old Dave chicken, they would take some man like Bill Borah. He is LaFollette or Bareille or La Guardia. They may at times have shed off old "senator" but they are who know more of them as a whole than they are who let more sensible, responsible and sensible and have a better conception of the American problem than any Third New Dealer.

As far as I am concerned, having a good deal of personal contact with the whole crew, I would rather trust any of them—especially Senator Borah—than the present White House syndicate.

But it would be hard to convince the country. If I were running Republican strategy, I would nominate a middle-of-the-way Democrat somebody like Jack Garner, Jimmy Byrnes or Pat Harrison. It might present difficulties, but in any of those cases they would get a less dangerous President than Henry Wallace, Harry Hopkins or a third term for Franklin Roosevelt—and they would have a much to win.

The old order changers. The Republican Land attempt to fool the people must never be repeated. This is a middle-of-the-road country. It is now clear beyond question that there is a middle-of-the-road candidate in the Republican crew. But there are nearly 17,000,000 votes.

A good, truly liberal candidate could split the difference of 10,000,000 Third New Deal votes and be elected. If that isn't done, these wild men could run the country before new salvation is possible.

sees, old New York City Honest John quietly tips toes away and keeps his trap closed forever after.

However, we are talking about honest John Citizen of some other address who comes in aglow with public spirit and is sworn to tell the truth and who tells it just that way. Then they turn him over to the lawyer for the defense and right away John becomes so funny that you spit your sides laughing at him.

THE LAWYER for the defense starts in quietly ribbing John and pretty soon he has impugned John's veracity and his motives and has put John pretty much in the light of an all-around scallawag himself and even the judge on the bench, whose salary John is helping to pay through the medium of taxes, has to join in the merriment at John's expense.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHOULD youth take over the government? and old age to govern the air?

"NO," cries Helen Herck, 27, of Long Island City, N. Y. "ARE OLD FOLK FIT FOR FEDERAL JOBS? OR SHOULD AGE BE OUSTED AND YOUTH ASSUME THEIR JOBS?"

There's a question that's guaranteed to start a wrangle anywhere, anytime nowadays. Time was when Gray Hairs took precedence, automatically, regardless of their record. Today the situation is reversed, and despite Friend Pitkin, Dimples win and LIFE FLOES AT FORTY for many a trained and reliable worker.

Is that fair—or sensible? Would both Government and Big Business be better served if Age were given the air—Youth placed in charge?

"NO!" cries Helen Herck, surprisingly taking sides against her own generation. "The idea is both cruel and stupid!"

"I have been in government service for eight years and I am happy to state that I have rarely seen an older man who wasn't ably filling his position at least judged by actual years, gray hairs and stiffened joints, such men will have been rated 'old'—but they certainly weren't old from the angle of courage and competency."

"Put young men in charge of our government? NO! I repeat to say that I've found my contemporaries to be poor sports, greedy and grasping, and all too willing to resort to tricks for their own advancement which older men would have despised."

"On the other hand, the older men are usually fair . . . placing loyalty to their service above personal ambition . . . good sports about shouldering blame . . . and willing to give any youngster a chance."

"I wonder if young people who advocate 'Dropping Dad' realize the consequences of their proposal. Can't they see they are breaking the hearts and spirits of those who have cared for them through childhood . . . killing them as surely as though they plunged a knife into their flesh. There's an ugly word for an act like that—PATRICIDE!"

Also consider this, Young Americans! If you drive Dad from his job, you must either support him or make him an object of charity.

"ARE YOU GOING TO SUPPORT HIM AS CHEERFULLY AS HE SUPPORTED YOU? OBVIOUSLY HE CAN'T RETIRE ON HIS SAVINGS BECAUSE, IN NEARLY EVERY CASE, THOSE SAVINGS HAVE GONE TO YOUR SUPPORT. WILL YOU REMEMBER THAT WHEN YOU SEE HIM SITTING IDLE . . . OR WILL YOU TREAT HIM AS A BEGGAR?"

Savages kill their old. But we who are supposed to be civilized, should appreciate ours and be grateful for their past and present and tempered wisdom which only comes from age. SOME DAY WE MAY BE OLD OURSELVES! LET'S PREPARE FOR IT BY MAKING AGE A BEAUTIFUL VALUED PERIOD INSTEAD OF TREATING IT AS A DISEASE OR CRIME.

FINE sentiments, my dear, when such are meant. But being 35 myself, I'm forced to admit that there are certain things to be said on the other side. This respect for Age theory, indeed, largely—but in reality, it has caused more cynicism and prompted more peevishness and stupidity than any other level of the trend.

Old Age, per se, is no guarantee of worth . . . no cause for reverence. Wisdom does not automatically accompany years. I must be worked for, at any age. And the man who won't keep fit is unworthy of respect and responsibility whatever his 60 years or 6 months old.

"HAVE YOU WHAT IT TAKES?" That says I should be the test of any mortal at any age and the proof of his fitness to hold his position.

BETTY ALDEN

On Beacon Hill

Laura Wiggins
Today's Bride

By BETTY ALDEN

LAURA WIGGINS and Barbara Kidder, who have shared the thrills of an archaeological expedition to Central America supervised by Barbara's illustrious father, Dr. Alfred V. Kidder, have chosen wedding dates within three weeks of each other.

Laura, the artist of Dr. Kidder's expedition winter before last, is being married this afternoon to Eliot Putnam, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Putnam, of Beacon street, and Barbara has chosen July 19th as the date for her marriage to Willi Buse, of Guatemala City, whom she met when she accompanied her father on the expedition.

Two clergymen are officiating at the wedding of Laura and Eliot this afternoon in St. Paul's Church, Dedham, which is beautifully decorated with branches of pink and white mountain laurel. Rev. Francis Lee Whittemore and Rev. T. Huntington Chippell are the ministers and Charles Wiggins, 2nd, headmaster of Noble and Greenough School, is escorting his daughter down the aisle.

A veil of old Spanish lace adds beauty and charm to Laura's simple ivory satin dress and she is carrying an old fashioned bouquet of lilies of the valley. Whimsical poke bonnets of cornflower blue add a picturesque touch to the yellow marquisette gowns of the maid of honor and bridesmaids, all carrying arm bouquets of blue delphinium. Rosalind Wiggins precedes her sister down towards the altar and the bridesmaids are Mrs. George T. Keyes, Jr., the former Lucy Stone; Anne H. Richards, Laura Dodge, Barbara Kidder and Katherine Peabody.

Henry Putnam is best man for his brother, and another brother, Sumner, has come on from New York to head the corps of ushers. In this group are the Messrs. Talbot Baker, Nathaniel S. Clifford, Joseph Cunningham, William Faversham, Jr., Charles Wiggins, 3rd, John Wiggins, all of Boston, and Thomas S. Kernan, of Utica, N. Y.

The reception is taking place at Noble and Greenough, where Mrs. Wiggins is receiving in a gown of white flowered chiffon with jubonnet hat and slippers and Mrs. Putnam in pale gray lace and chiffon. Last evening the bridal party and a number of intimate friends were entertained at a dinner dance at the Dedham Polo and Country Club and, just before the ceremony today, Mr. and Mrs. Putnam, Sr., gave a luncheon for all concerned.

Out of Town Guests Due

MR. AND MRS. C. MONTAGUE WARD, of New York and North Hampton, N. H., have come on for the wedding festivities, and other out of town guests include Count Zambrinus Lyons, of Rome, Italy; Mrs. John Elliott, of Newport, aunt of the bride; and John Kennard of Concord, N. H.

The bridegroom is a member of the faculty at Noble and Greenough, and, after September 15, he and his bride will reside in Dedham. She is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, graduate of Framingham School, and is an artist of considerable ability.

John M. New, daughter of the HARMONES, of Chestnut Hill, is following in the footsteps of several of her friends in choosing to study the dramatic study this summer. Along with studying theory of the drama she will get some actual experience before the footlights for she has joined the Marblehead Players, one of the newly organized summer theatre groups which will give performances twice weekly during the next eight weeks.

Honeymooners Now At Riddells Bay

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wiggins, of New York, are honeymooning at Riddells Bay, Bermuda, where other Bostonian vacationists include Dr. and Mrs. Alfred V. Kidder, of Boston.

Mrs. Wiggins is the former Frances Proctor, daughter of Mr. Charles Proctor, of Westchester, at whose home the wedding took place two weeks ago.

PARTY AHEAD—The season's debutantes will wind up the month of June with a gay party tomorrow afternoon at Ye Olde Cape Codder, in Centerville, where Mrs. Whipple Fry is entertaining for her debutante niece, Marietta Withington (left) and Hetty Millar. Frances Walker, pictured above with Miss Withington, will be a pourer at the tea. Miss Withington is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Withington, of Brookline, and Miss Walker's parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Walker of Concord.

Reply to Slur on Boston Suckerhood

CELEBRATED FOR HIS BLUNDERBUSS REMARKS

Mike Jacobs, the New York fight impresario, states that, while Boston's local yokelry do quite well to keep so many minor sport enterprises afloat, Boston is still a frontier cow-town in the question of supporting a world's championship prize fight.

AUSTEN LAKE

This is a slur, canard and contumely on the gallant suckerhood of our city which has given hunks of its living flesh to horse and dog racing, beano, sweeps and the number pools. What Mr. Jacobs means, of course, is that not enough super-chumps can be filtered from our smaller gambling fry to buy up $30 ringside seats a full Poughkeepsie distance from the fighting ring.

This requires a profound contempt for money. But I submit to Mr. Jacobs that Boston and its environs have, within late years, divorced New England's famous thrift to take gambling as a common-law wife. Boston has outspent the New York population in its horse and dog plants by 2 to 1 and are still squandering in a spirit of selfless abandon.

New Yorkers have always been a trifle snobbish about their money foolishness and cocky about getting less value for their dollars than their country cousins. But if any city deserves a congressional medal in this period of national emergency for having best emulated the spendthrift example of the Federal Government in frittering its way back to prosperity, it is Boston under the able leadership of its horse and dog bettors.

I think Mayor Tobin could almost sue Mr. Jacobs for saying a thing like that.

Investors in Tongue Tickles

THE BOSTON PEOPLE ARE PRETTY MULLISH when it comes to spending their funds according to their whim. This is on the quietest theory that, if they want to buy intestinal convulsions and moonlight madness and have the price, it's really nobody's business but their own.

Yes! The people are bullheaded about their spending rights and still insist on teasing themselves broke, despite the warnings of the moralists who predicted that horse and dog gambling would bring an underworld reunion with unvirtuous characters removing the citizens' skin without bothering to unbutton their coats.

It was a sanctimonious prelude which should have driven timid spenders to sew their bankrolls in the seams of their underwear. But instead they went off each summer to sniff the bait and stay for the annual May-to-November orgy which surpasses even the Coolidge boom when people were looking for quicker ways to melt off their financial fat.

People have been pestered against their compulsion and will spend the money they want to spend, no matter how they are warned away. Among them, it is said, that a prize fight in a house race is going to be a fair bet, and that the best of the plant to get in. This same of the gambling racket is seen in the social outposts of Florida where a prize fight is watched by patrons frankly that their table manners cannot be better and that they are fools to try to buck the perambulations which are always welcome to the house. Thus, the gamblers are always with us, and the sportsman's swarm in and take their toll.

Wanted: An Air of Mystery

ONE SUSPECTS THAT MUCH OF SUFFOLK DOWNS' failure to win more clients is due to the sanctimonious air which its socialists nover have sprayed about the place. An air of mystery is a horse and dog park's finest asset. Indeed, if a publisher wishes a sure-fire sale for an especially smelly novel he sends copies to the current Anthony Comstock and contemporary thunder hurlers, and when the book is properly publicized as unfit for national innocence, it runs into 18 editions and makes the literary lizard who wrote it rich.

Suffolk Downs' mistake was it did not submit in its beginning to a similar revirement with the dog tracks as a shadowy enterprise invited with American Apaches and picturesque no-goodies who inhabit the twilight zones between honest and heinous intent. So Suffolk, as one of the most laudable horse tracks in America, is reduced to showering free passes to lure a payroll of people while Wonderland fills its park mightily like medieval in a pantry tin. And, curiously, the politicians who screamed loudest when the dog people planned their site are now among the most frequent patrons of the property, just as the dry eating congressmen of the South are the most generous users of bottle goods in the Senate office building.

Yet the same of the dog people, through a precautionary precautionary precautionary, have found no more actual disorder or actual disorderousness than when they clutter the approaches to the Boston, Philadelphia and New York. This is a case often said with not a word of knowledge, for the dog people are the only, a game of evil being the only of the dog people.

War Admiral, declared the son of Man o' War would be a positive starter. War Admiral was certain to go to the post a favorite in view of his great record.

Flying Scot had considerable last minute backing, while other racegoers liked the chances of Peligrosa II, Busby K or Menow.

Singers Folly, Finance and Old Comrade were scratched this morning on account of the unsatisfactory condition of the track.

The outside of the track was in much better condition than the inside.

The oval was drying out fairly well on the outside as the horses went to the post for the first race. On the inside of the track, there were big puddles and inches of soft mud.

AGAINST STYLE

Seabiscuit likes to lug in towards the rail, and as a result the track was very much against his style of running.

War Admiral on the other hand runs well in the center of the track and also on the outside when Jockey Charley Kurtsinger picks these spots. The Admiral is still very much of an all-round horse.

Under the rules of racing, Howard has until half an hour to post and exported the horses in the big race will go to the post until after 5 o'clock.

The crowd arrived early at the track. There were many luncheon parties in the clubhouse and in the paddock club.

George Woolf, jockey for Seabiscuit, took out a Massachusetts jockey license at noon.

Samuel Riddle, owner of War Admiral, who has been in poor health, was accompanied by his physician.

Ruth Escapes Auto Fatality

NEW YORK, June 20 (INS)—Stake Ruth, former home run king and now coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers, escaped death by a narrow margin in an automobile crash on West Saddle river road near Little River, N. Y.

Ruth, returning from a visit to his friend, C. S. Pharis, crashed into a car driven by an unidentified woman. One of the front wheels of the Babe's car broke, and the vehicle jumped a ditch, turned over and ran into a stone wall.

Neither Ruth nor the woman was injured. Ruth was taken back to the Blue estate in Saddle river.

Counterfeit Plot Nipped At Downs

POLICE and United States Secret Service agents today had nipped what they said was a scheme to "spread" thousands of dollars in counterfeit $2, $5 and $10 bills at Suffolk Downs race track, where War Admiral and Seabiscuit were expected to meet in a feature of the day.

With eight police already on duty, agents were combing the South North and West Ends of Boston, as well as Chelsea and Revere. They said they expected the dragnet to bring out at least 50 more counterfeiters.

Particularly the object of an intensive hunt was a suspected cache in the North End believed to be the hiding place of the bulk of the "phony" money. The ring had planned to pass off the afternoon.

Some of the counterfeit bills already have found their way into circulation. The "mob," secret service agents said, has been making Suffolk square. Boston night life center, its meeting place, and some of the bills have been passed in business places there.

Secret service heads said they believe the gang to be one with national wide ramifications, with headquarters probably in New York.

The "mob" planned it seemed to take advantage of the great crowds expected at Suffolk down the afternoon. In two or three meetings of the gang hoped to be able to shove thousands of dollars through the betting windows just before the $20,000 race was run.

Disputed Louis Blow on Screen

That terrific "kidney punch" which put Max Baer in the hospital with a fractured vertebra and left "Brown Bomber" Joe Louis out of the ring was a "fake blow on a head."

You can answer that question to your own satisfaction by seeing some of the New York trip but the scenes of the Madison Square Garden fight in the Madison Square Park theater in New York, the Oriental Theater in Manhattan and the Hyde Park Theater in Hyde Park this week.

The film is run in both slow motion and at registration speed.

Wilson Sails With 'Admiral'

By DAVE WILSON

Despite the sloppiness of the Suffolk Downs racing affair, I expect War Admiral to prove beyond all question of doubt that he is the greatest race horse in the country since Pommery. When he becomes champion of the Boston-advised Massachusetts Handicap.

If any field can give War Admiral an argument, it is the one he will face today.

There was never any question in my mind about War Admiral's ability, but after checking through the field he will face today, I can not see any horse, not even the great Seabiscuit, beating him. Seabiscuit is my second choice. This, despite the fact that he is going to the post just the kind of a track on which Calumet Ducky and Snark beat him in the Narragansett Special a year ago.

MENOW HIGHLY RATED

After a meeting of the owners of the horses entered in "The Race of the Century" with C. F. Adams, chairman of the board of directors of the Eastern Racing Association, yesterday afternoon, all thoughts of postponing the race was that the race would be held. The owners were opposed to such a move.

I would interpret that to mean that C. F. Adams would start his horse today unless the Suffolk Downs racing ship is hit by a storm, or becomes what is termed a "holding track."

That appears already as it is being written some few hours before the race is scheduled to go to the post.

There is tremendous interest in this race because it is expected to provide for all time the answer as to which is the better horse, Seabiscuit or War Admiral.

Hal Price Headless a Menow might be racked up behind War Admiral and Seabiscuit in any big stepping of this race, as noted John Hay Whitney's Flying Scot.

Menow carries considerable early speed but whether it is enough to carry him along with War Admiral for the first mile of the race and still have enough left to offer a challenge in the final furlong is debatable.

WATCH FLYING SCOT

The off track is just the kind of thing that Flying Scot's connection would have chosen could they have made their choice.

Winner of the American Classic is a three-year-old, racing Scot came back to the track in New York today in the spring and has been pointed specifically for this race.

War Admiral Has
Two Dispositions

Champion Bad
Post Actor

By JACK CONWAY

WAR ADMIRAL, the wonder horse who should win the $50,000 added Massachusetts Handicap today, has two dispositions. I was at Hialeah Park at Miami, Fla., the day Samuel Riddle's famous thoroughbred won the $50,000 Widener Cup race. With Dave Wilson, I visited the paddock before the race, and found War Admiral as peaceful as a pony as Trainer George Conway prepared him for the big test.

Mr. Boston

At Hialeah Park it is necessary for the horses to walk along a small path banked on both sides by thousands of people as they parade to the track. War Admiral was as peaceful during this parade as your favorite saddle horse.

An War Admiral hit the track, he sensed the fact he was going to race, and stepped along briskly. Jockey Kurtzinger held the reins tighter, and became very alert.

At the gate War Admiral took a peek at the other horses, and then proved his reputation as a bad post actor. He kicked up so much that the starter finally put him on the outside.

Contrary to the opinion held by many fans it is doing a thoroughbred a favor when the starter moves him to the outside. The horse is in a spot where he hasn't any interference, and he can go flying into a good position as soon as the race starts.

Likes to Take Early Lead

WAR ADMIRAL will run from No. 10 post position today. He will be on the outside of his field, and Jockey Kurtzinger is confident he will have him leading when the thoroughbreds hit the clubhouse turn.

Once out from War Admiral will not have to worry about being shut off or humped. He can set his own pace, and try to have enough in reserve for the final run through the stretch. In the Widener Cup race, War Admiral had a lead of six lengths when he hit the head of the stretch, and just coasted in. It is unlikely that War Admiral will have such a big advantage today as the competition will be keener, while he will be running over a muddy track.

The race won't furnish much of a newspaper story if War Admiral runs his race and comes down in front unless it is a blanket finish with two or three horses noses apart. The boys in the press box, none of whom are picking War Admiral to win, would prefer to see one of the outside choices take first money. Then they could get real fire into their stories of the race.

I hope it is a blanket race. If it is, it will help racetracks forget some of the differences between tracks when pastured horses find they don't like the new place.

The starter is a very important man with the greatest thoroughbred in the world. He is the one who is responsible for the horse's success or failure. He is the one who is responsible for the horse's safety. He is the one who is responsible for the horse's health. He is the one who is responsible for the horse's happiness. He is the one who is responsible for the horse's life.

Random Shots at Target

THE MUDDERS at least have been happy during the past few days. . . . Charley Howard, owner of Seabiscuit, explained to turf writers that a drying track is much more dangerous for Seabiscuit, who has been having trouble with his legs, than a sloppy track. . . . A drying out track is sticky and holds the flying hoofs of the thoroughbreds, while horses do not have as much trouble navigating through a sloppy track. . . . They may slide around a bit, but they are not in so much danger of pulling tendons and breaking down. . . . With Seabiscuit slated to retire and go into stud early next year, Howard has taken every possible precaution to preserve the physical condition of his famous horse.

This writer's story on the remarkable golfing ability of Earl Adams of Waltham, who has not full use of his arms, aroused unusual reader interest. . . . I received numerous telephone calls from persons who liked the story. . . . Incidentally the 23-year-old Adams was paired with Bill Joyce, an 18-year-old youngster from Belmont, when he defeated the crack golfers of this section of the country in the four ball tournament at Belmont. . . . Joyce graduates from Cambridge Latin in June, and hasn't yet decided what college he will enter. . . . Like Adams, the youthful Joyce has what it takes in athletic competition.

The Boston Royal Colored Giants, a top baseball team, will play the House of David nine at National League baseball field at 3 o'clock on Wednesday, July 6. . . . This should be an attraction worth taking in.

It looks as if the Armstrong-Ambers bout will be definitely set back until August 2. . . . It would be unwise for Ambers to enter the ring with the sensational Armstrong unless he had the full use of both of his dukes.

Budge, Austin in Wimbledon Final

Both Sweep to Easy 3-Set Victories

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 29 (AP)—Don Budge, holder of the world's four major tennis titles, stroked his way into the finals in defense of his All-England championship today when he defeated Ferenc Puncsics of Yugoslavia, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

The California red-head, who also holds the American, Australian and French titles, will meet England's H. W. (Bunny) Austin in the finals. Austin scored in straight sets today, defeating Henry Henkel of Germany, 6-2, 6-4, 6-0.

After dropping the first game, Austin took five in a row, driving the ball beautifully off his forehand and volleying superbly. Upset by the wind and with no power behind his usually hard service, Henkel was unable to hold his service.

TOO FAST FOR GERMAN

The first two games in the second set went against service. However, Austin, fleet of foot and faultless at the net, broke through the German in the ninth and then held his own service in the tenth.

The third set saw Austin at his best as he ran out the match in just one hour. The English stylist, who was charged with only 14 errors in the entire match, crushed Henkel with an endless flow of technically perfect shots.

Budge coasted through the first four games just to see how Puncsics was. Then after winning the fifth on his own service, the American broke through Puncsics in the sixth and eighth games. Puncsics showed he is an excellent baseline player but against Budge's all-court game he was lost. Don aces him almost as he pleased.

COASTED TO VICTORY

Budge gave Puncsics only 11 points in the second set. He took the first three at love, won the fourth and then paraded through the next three.

Budge elected to stay on the baseline at the start of the third set and let Puncsics break his service in the fourth at six games. Puncsics twice came within a point of a 5-2 lead but then Don decided that was enough. He squared it at 4-4, came from behind to win the ninth after losing the first two points and allowed his rival only one point in the 10th and final game.

There was no stopping Budge. Puncsics was good, but it was like Henry Armstrong fighting Joe Louis. When Don went to the net he left poor Puncsics helpless and scratching his head.

Only in the third set did the Red let down. Then he stayed on the baseline until Puncsics held a 4-2 lead and twice was within a point of a 5-2 advantage. Deciding it was time to swing into action again, Budge went to the net and quickly completed a record of having added women's doubles to the list of his titles.

Two Games In Twi Loop

With the week at its half-way mark, the Boston Park League will resume activities this evening. With two games carded, the after-supper fans will have to travel to either Lee Playground, South Boston, or the Rogers Park Playground in Brighton to witness the battles.

At South Boston, the McDonough Club will entertain the Wilsons of Dorchester. The McDonough Club is tied up for second place honors with the Brighton Civics, with 24 points each, and the Wilson Club, having won their four games last week, intend to continue their winning stride.

Over in Brighton, the Civics will also be battling to break the tie in their favor with McDonoughs when they play the Holy Name A. A. of Roslindale. Johnny McLaughlin will do the chucking for the Civics, while Tommy Musil will attempt to duplicate his feat at Roslindale when he set the Brighton nine down, 5 to 1.

Given Transfusion

PARIS, June 29 (AP)—Suzanne Lenglen, once the world's foremost woman tennis player, today underwent a blood transfusion in an effort to arrest pernicious anemia which her physicians said had left her in "a serious condition." Her doctor expressed belief, however, that the former champion eventually would be cured. He reported no change after the transfusion. Miss Lenglen has been ill for ten days.

'JUG' GREAT COMPETITOR

Harold "Jug" McSpaden is the first Massachusetts open champion to defend his title successfully twice in a row since Alex Ross accomplished that feat back in 1908. "Jug" is a great competitor. His ability to come through under pressure has been responsible for McSpaden showing his heels to state open contestants for the past three years. For the second consecutive year McSpaden, Odersen and Nettelblad finished one-two-three. And there was but one stroke difference in their scoring. Last year McSpaden won by three strokes, against two this year. On both occasions, Andersen finished three strokes lower than Nettelblad. As usual, an official decision did not meet with the approval of some of the second guessers. At the sixth hole during the final round, McSpaden called for a ruling when his ball came to rest within a club's length of a water pipe. C. C. Campbell Patterson, secretary-treasurer of the M. G. A., ruled that the champion was entitled to a free lift. Later, he stated McSpaden's ball was not skyed by a tree as some of the gallery believed. Had Harry Ted Bishop Nettelblad finished the third round as he did the final one, he'd have slipped McSpaden by a stroke. Other things being equal, of course. In the a. m. Harry fumbled to the wire 4-5-5 but it was a different story in the p. m. when he picked up five strokes on Denny Shute in four holes with a 3-4-3-3 windup. That finish netted Nettelblad $5.00. Harry, incidentally, played a set of irons in the championship that he'd never used before. McSpaden saved the amateur "bookies" by his comeback, after trailing six shots at the halfway mark. Ted Bishop, with a 310, was the low amateur. And Jerry Gianferante received $20.00 for finishing eighth. Next week Dave Whiteside, New Bedford, will defend his state amateur crown at Essex Country Club. GRIMES.

Collegiates Back At Late Olympics

Dodger, Indians Fans Aroused by All-Star Choices

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP)—The loudest laments in the wake of the naming of the squads for the All-Star game at Cincinnati July 8 come from Cleveland and, of all places, Brooklyn.

Cleveland fans are beefing because their sterling first baseman, Hal Trosky, was left off the American League roster, and the Brooklyn addicts are boiling because Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, the veteran knuckle-baller, was given the go-by when the National League chose its boys.

Trosky, while no bargain on a fielder, has been levelling the fences all season, and at the moment is second only to his teammate, Earl Averill, among American League sluggers. He is banging the ball far ahead of the three first-basemen who were picked by the American League—Jimmy Fox, Hank Greenberg and Lou Gehrig.

GRIMES IN ARMS

Burling Grimes, Brooklyn manager, is as sore as the Flatbush fans about the "slighting" of Fitzsimmons by his former bosom pal, Bill Terry, who made the final selection of the National League team he will handle in the big one-day engagement.

"Everybody knows that Fitz would knock those American League siffs for the tonings," Grimes fumed. "I don't understand how he was passed up. Why, he's allowed only three earned runs in his last 46 innings, practically shut-out ball."

Burling takes particular exception to the fact that Mace Brown, Pittsburgh's sensational relief flinger, got the call over Fitz.

"I always thought you had to qualify for the All-Stars as a starting pitcher, not a finisher," he said. "The way Fitz is going now he would have those Americans eating out of his hand."

Cleveland would appear to have even a more meritorious protest on the exclusion of Trosky. Taking the batting figures at their face value, there would be no way of leaving him off. Still, the observer has a hunch he saw Trosky bosting himself out of an all-star place more than a month ago.

TROSKY SULKY

Cleveland was having pre-game battling practice at the Yankee Stadium, and Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks was watching from the dugout. All except Trosky took full swings. The Indians' slugger, petted because the practice pitcher wasn't placing the ball where he wanted it, just stuck out his bat a couple of times and then slouched away.

"What would you do to a player who acted like that?" someone asked McCarthy. McCarthy discharged a jet of tobacco juice at a convenient post and said nothing, but his silence was eloquent. He made the final choice of the American League squad.

Burk Wins at Henley Regatta

HEAVY, Eng. June 29 (AP)—Joe Burk, American sculling champion from the Penn. A. C. of Philadelphia, won his first race in the Diamond Sculls competition at the royal Henley regatta today when he defeated W. E. C. Horwood of England.

Horwood led at the start, but Burk passed him between the half and three-quarter mark and went on to score easily. The American was timed in eight minutes, 51 seconds for the mile and five-sixteenths.

Harvard's lightweight crew also won its first heat, beating the Henley Rowing Club by race lengths in seven minutes, 35 seconds.

The English eight pulled into a slight lead in the first quarter-mile, but the American boat soon overhauled them and won easily.

British Racer On Way to U. S.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., June 29 (AP)—Captain George Eyston, British auto racer, sailed today on the Queen Mary for the United States where he will make another attempt to break his own world's speed record of 112.20 miles per hour on the Bonneville flats in Utah. Sir Malcolm Campbell saw him off.

Furman Elected Cornell Commodore

ITHACA, N. Y., June 29 (AP)—John R. Furman of Elmira, N. Y., has been elected commodore of the Cornell varsity crew for next season, succeeding John W. Rogers of Wheeling, W. Va. Furman rowed No. 5 in the Cornell shell which finished sixth in the Poughkeepsie regatta last Monday.

Willie Turnesa Ties for Medal

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 29 (INS)—Willie Turnesa of Holy Cross and Lewis E. Oehmig of the University of Virginia topped 32 survivors in the qualifying round of the annual Intercollegiate Golf tournament. Both Turnesa and Oehmig took 145's for 35 holes.

Yankees Puzzle To Mack

NEW YORK, June 29 (INS)—Connie Mack, who has had more championship lessons shot from under him than Tom Mix's double had horses blown from between his legs, looked out his hotel window at the sad rain and said he felt awful sorry for Joe McCarthy.

Connie went on to explain that his mild grief was not born of material things.

"Something's happening to the Yankees that happens to every championship ball club," the old gentleman said. "Goodness mercy I should know! The best team I ever had was in 1912. It had won the pennant in 1910 and 1911, but in '12, when it was at its best, it just couldn't win."

"Name thing happened to us with that next great punch we got together. We won in 1913, with a team that wasn't near as good as the 1912 team that lost, and won again in 1914. But we couldn't win a game in the series that year."

TIERED OF WINNING

"Well, we didn't get another real good team until 1929, and then we won three years in a row, but something happened. The players were the same. They weren't too old. They felt dandy, but they just couldn't win any more. I tried and tried to figure out, but there's really no answer—except maybe something one of my 1912 stars told me once."

"He said, 'Connie, we're losing because we're just gosh-darned, fed up with winning.' Only he didn't say gosh-darned. Maybe that's the answer to what's happening to the Yankees."

"Of course, the Yankees got a long way to go. If the Yankees had the lead the Indians have today people would be saying, 'Well, it's all over.' They can still win."

PLEASED WITH GROVE

"So as Boston, isn't it wonderful the way Bob Groves (Connie never learned to call it Grove) is pitching? Came under with a dandy curve ball, when he knew he couldn't use the fast one any more. Fox, Joe, he's been doing real good."

"Detroit? No, I wouldn't think so. Mickey just hasn't the kind of pitching he needs. Where would they be without Kennedy? Washington? Maybe. You've got to say they've got an outside chance, but while I wouldn't want to hurt any feelings it seems to me they're too in and out."

Callahan, Martin Ready for Gong

Ambitious Andy Callahan, Lawrence larruper, today weighed in at 146½ pounds after completing his final session of strenuous training for his 10-round main bout against George Martin of Boston's South End, at the Mariaville Gardens, Providence, tomorrow night. Martin, who concluded his heavy training at the farm of his uncle at Lowell, Mass., weighed in at 146 and prophesied a quick triumph over the Irish southpaw socker.

crowd ever to witness a horse race in New England is expected to crowd through the turnstiles tomorrow.

For once the national racing spotlight is focused on this section, and every train and plane brings in celebrities who are making it a point to be in the stands today when the great race will be run off.

Starter Bob Frensd is determined to get away one of his extra special starts in the big race tomorrow. We were in New England have always believed that Frensd is tops.

Speaking this morning of the forthcoming horse race, Frensd said, "You can say that we'll get them away from a standing start if we have to stay there all night."

Dark horse of the race, of course, will be W. V. McGrath's Peligroso

1, a South American importation. When this horse first came to this country earlier in the year, advance reports said he had beaten Calabro II and Sahri II a number of times in Chile before those two well known importations came to this country.

This was never denied by Peligroso's connections and as Calabro II finished a bang-up second to Seabiscuit in the race a year ago, and Sahri II went on to win the Hawthorne Gold Cup in Chicago, you can judge for yourself whether or not he is worthy of a wager.

This race offers an excellent chance to compare the ability of the riders.

Kurtzinger on War Admiral, Wall on Menow, Woolf on Seabiscuit, Johnny Longden on Busy K, Carroll Bierman on Finance, Freddy Smith on War Minister, and Sammy Renick on Flying Scot, have all taken their bow in the spotlight at one time or another.

Wilson Again Has Four at Downs

As a tuneup for the Day of Days at Suffolk Downs, Dave Wilson, Boston Evening American's nonpareil handicapper, picked four winners on the Tuesday card at the East Boston oval.

Dave had Catchall in the first, $6.20, and Hunting Ridge in the second, $5.50, thus picking the 6 by double for the second straight day.

He also had Vote Boy in the fourth, $6.50, and Four Bagger in the sixth, $5.40.

In the seventh race his first choice, El Ballarino, finished second, and his second choice, Count Me, finished first.

Quite a day! Dave is picking War Admiral in the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap this afternoon. Climb aboard.

Collegiate Ace

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 29 (AP)—Arthur Conaty of Hartdale, N. Y., playing for Fordham in the National Intercollegiate golf tournament, scored an ace on the 112-yard No. 4 hole. The shot was made with a six iron.

Wanted Horses to Race—Apply at Downs

Racing Secretary Gene Bury announced early this afternoon that he would be unable to release the entries for tomorrow's races at the usual hour. The unsatisfactory condition of the track and the fact so many horses on the grounds are unfit to run made it difficult for Bury to secure the necessary entries for his races.

There was a last-minute drive through the barns this afternoon to round up overdue horsesmen to enter their thoroughbreds for tomorrow.

Green Fiery At Gift Job Questions

Civil Service Commissioner Thomas H. Green was threatened with ejection by a legislative court officer today in one of a dozen flareups that featured renewal of hearings on "gift jobs" at the Unemployment Compensation Commission.

The guard was ordered over Green by Senator Angier L. Goodwin of Melrose, chairman of the joint legislative committee conducting the inquiry.

"Officer, keep that man quiet!" was the order of Chairman Goodwin to Officer Archibald Estabrook after Green had threatened to walk out of the

(International News Photos)

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to Great Britain, today denounced as a "complete unadulterated lie" an assertion in a current magazine article that James Roosevelt, son and secretary to the President, helped get him his ambassadorial post and helped him as well to become "the premiere Scotch whiskey salesman in America."

The article, by Alva Johnston in the Saturday Evening Post, dealt mainly with young Roosevelt and his career as an insurance salesman.

Kennedy commented on the story as he sailed for his London post. Reading the section applying to him he commented with a grin:

"I admit I am the ambassador but I deny that I am the premiere Scotch whiskey salesman in this country. I do like, however, to be the best in everything."

Reading further in the article, he added he never had bought "one-cents worth of insurance from Jimmy Roosevelt." He had needed nobody's help in getting public positions, he said.

"Kennedy," he said, "is able to get along pretty well without help from anyone."

The Johnston article, he went on, "tries to make me out a phony, but if all of it is as true as the part I have read about myself, it is a complete, unadulterated lie."
